

Passage Through Blue blends art, dance in one unique performance

February 15, 2017 | The Daily Free Press

"We were really interested in making interactive art, art that the audience can be involved with and respond to," Brayton said. "Throughout the show, the audience gets to move around to different areas of the space, almost like a living museum. There are different sections in the space that the audience will walk to and see throughout the show." Read more...