

On the Surface: Wearable Art Banners

January 25 – February 8, 2012

With Surface Design Class, Mount Ida College

Questions about graphic images, body adornment, textile and art guided advanced fashion-design students to create a bright, colorful, collaborative fabric collage.

Senior and junior level students from the Fashion Design Department at Mount Ida College in Newton, MA used several techniques learned during their Surface Design and Textile class to express what surface design means to them. Founded in 1899, Mount Ida is a private coeducational institution, located eight miles from downtown Boston in Newton, Massachusetts. The Design program provides a solid academic foundation with extensive professional preparation, including coursework in design principles and hands-on experience using the most up-to-date technology in the industry.

Community Windows | Where artists of all ages showcase work in the Mills Gallery Windows

The Mills Gallery windows are the newest exhibit space on the BCA campus! Artwork from local organizations will be showcased in the Mills Gallery windows in between exhibitions throughout the year. Through workshops at the BCA and at partner sites, artists of all ages are curating exhibitions of their work or creating new, site-specific artwork made for the Mills Gallery windows.
